

Chris Huston

Sales Specialist

Polar King International, Inc.

Chris Huston is a sales specialist at Polar King with a decade of experience helping businesses and institutions solve their most critical cold storage challenges. Specializing in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology sectors, Chris has become a trusted advisor to companies navigating the complex requirements of temperature-controlled storage in highly regulated environments.

Throughout his tenure at Polar King, Chris has developed deep knowledge of both rental and permanent cold storage solutions, allowing him to provide flexible options tailored to each client's unique operational needs. His understanding of regulatory compliance, temperature monitoring requirements, and quality assurance protocols has made him an invaluable resource for pharmaceutical and biotech companies that cannot afford any margin for error in their cold chain management. Chris excels at translating technical specifications into practical solutions that meet both business objectives and strict industry standards.

He attended Purdue University Fort Wayne.
